ASSEMBLYMAN ROGER NIELLO TO SPEAK:

By Carl Burton

Ask Roger Niello: What is California's Biggest Challenge?

Born in San Francisco, Roger Niello has lived in Sacramento nearly all of his life. After graduating from Sacramento's Encina High School, Roger attended the University of California at Berkeley for his undergraduate studies, then completed his graduate studies at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Roger worked as a Certified Public accountant until he joined his family's business at Niello Auto Group in 1974 and spent the next 25 years running retail automobile dealerships with his family partners.

After serving as the President of the Sacramento Metro Chamber of Commerce, Roger was elected to the Board of Supervisors and later, the State Assembly.

In the Assembly, Roger was appointed to the Assembly Banking and Finance Committee and also served in positions on the Assembly Budget, and Transportation Committees. In addition, he served for a brief time on the Assembly Public Employees, Retirement and Social Security Committee and the Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

IN MY OPINION

By Carl Burton

As a Republican I'm tired of government intrusion into my life, I'm tired of higher taxes, I'm tired of the way the California budget has been handled.

I believe that many of the concerns motivating me are the same reason motivating tea party activists. I want tea parties to understand that Republicans share their concerns and I want them to join the Republican Party and help us to take control of the U.S. Senate, the White House and the state legislature in 2012.

Republicans of River City members are tired of taxes and spending so maybe we're a little ahead of the tea party curve. The 2010 campaign was about Roger has also served on the Joint Committee on Emergency Services and Homeland Security and the Select Committee on Foster Care.

Throughout his public service, Roger has put his business skills to work by promoting legislation to produce a better economic climate. In the Assembly, he helped craft legislation to spur economic development and job creation while promoting budget reforms such as a spending cap and rainy day fund to prevent future budget crises.

He has authored legislation to cut the waste from government and worked to reduce the regulatory burden on small business.

With a background in local government, Roger understands the concerns of local officials and has fought to eliminate the burdensome mandates that Sacramento places on cities and counties.

jobs and the economy, which work to the GOP's advantage in other parts of nation but not in California. The state and local party needs to a better job of reaching out all of its citizens with our core principle of individual liberty. Remember conservatism stands for individual freedom and limited government.

Republicans of River City needs to be involved in recruiting tea party members, registering voters and candidates to run for public office.

Reps Doris Matsui quit the powerful House Rules Committee every piece of legislation that goes to the House floor first goes to the Rules committee for their approval. Memberships on the Rules committee give lawmakers opportunities to collect chits from the leaders who appoint them and their colleagues who need them.

I believe by giving up this key committee Matsui is letting us know she will be retiring from Congress in 2012 so we will be celebrating her retiring with a cake wishing her a happy retirement at our January meeting.

Hispanic Republicans win big in Election 2010

Two major events occurred for Latinos on Election Day, First Latinos turned out in uncharacteristically high numbers in some states, sometimes by twice as many voters as in 2006; Second, the election was marked by three historic victories for Republican Latino candidates in New Mexico, Nevada and Florida.

New Mexicans elected the first Republican Latina governor. Susana Martinez; Marco Rubio, the "son of exiles" as he describes himself, won the Florida U.S. Senate seat in a heated race; and the State of Nevada elected its first Hispanic governor, Republican Brian Sandoval.

Latinos were 17 percent of the vote in the Texas gubernatorial race and 16 percent of the vote in Nevada gubernatorial race, according to CNN exit polls. These historic successes in key races, as well as the presence of many Hispanic Republican candidates winning key congressional and state races, many over democratic Latino incumbents, speak to the fact that the Hispanic electorate is truly a growing force that cannot be uniformly labeled as democratic.

According to a 2010 poll of registered Latino voters 53 percent of respondents described themselves as conservative. Respondents also ranked jobs and the economy, faith and family, and patriotism and homeland security as their top priorities.

I believe Latinos have deep-rooted conservative values, Latino conservative values that clearly define this new community of Latino Republican candidates signal that a paradigm shift has occurred in Latino politics.

Our efforts to elect a Hispanic Republican leader to the post of California Lt. Governor was defeated by turn coat Republicans who don't take President Reagan words to heart - "My 80 percent friend is not my 20 percent enemy"

Now all of California has to suffer because ever state wide office is in Democrat hands.

I believe by actions of the turn coats they have create a rifts within the California Republican Party and Hispanic community that may take Republicans years to heal.
